

Bev Audition Monologue (Act I)

(Trying desperately to maintain a cheerful facade while discussing their impending move.)

"It's just that change can be a wonderful thing, don't you think? For everyone involved. A fresh start in a new place, with new air, and new trees. Russ thinks I'm being silly, but I really do believe that people are inherently good, if you just give them the opportunity. We have to look forward, not backward. If we spend all our time looking at what we lost, or what went wrong, how are we ever supposed to build something new? I want this house to be filled with life again. I want a young family to run up and down these stairs and not feel... the weight. Is that so terrible of me to want?"
